

August President Letter

September is the time when we go back to full Cowboy or Cowgirl dress. Hopefully, the weather will be cool and comfortable, but if it is really hot, as it can sometimes be at this time of year, you may dress as you see fit. We don't want anyone falling out because of the heat. Think snow.

Last month I talked about my theory of magnetic lead. To follow up on that, since I theorized that like poles attract to the target and hit it, and unlike poles repel and miss the target, I decided to try an experiment. I went to the range and gathered up the remains of bullets that hit the target and melted them down, thinking that any new bullets made from this lead would surely hit the target. Well, after melting the lead and making it into new bullets, I fired them at the target. Something must happen to the like lead when it hits the targets so hard that it upsets the like and unlike charges. Some of the bullets hit the targets and some missed completely. Now, since I picked up some really nice bullets along with many lead fragments, the ratio of hits to misses I had was about the same ratio of good bullets and fragments, it's possible that the good bullets retained their ability to hit the target again, while the fragments must have been turned into unlike lead and missed the targets completely. I'll have to go back to the drawing board and try something different. If you have any ideas on this matter, pass them along to me. By the way, none of the good shooters who almost always hit the targets seem to want to share their knowledge of which bullets to keep and which ones to throw away.

Don't forget the SPECIAL November Veterans Shoot that will take place the last Saturday of November. Admission is free to any Veteran, and non veterans can also compete for a donation of their choice to be given to the Wounded Warrior Project. This is your chance to donate without getting on a mailing list and receiving repeated requests for money from numerous other charities wanting your dollars.

Do you remember when people used to cook in the house and crap outside? Now people want to crap in the house and cook outside. Things sure have changed.
